The University
HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

THE LANDS OF THE ABOVE-NAMED ASSOCIATION are situated in San Francisco and are slightly and most desirably located, adjoining the grounds purchased by the Presbyterian University Society, on which College buildings are to be at once erected The site is less than thirty minutes ride from Montgomery street; lying just west or back of the lands of the South San Francisco Homestead and Railroad Association and the Bay View Park, almost within a stone's throw of ST. MARY'S COLLEGE.

The tract will require little or no grading, there being scarcely a single lot on which it would not be safe to build without any change of grade. It commands a

Beautiful View of the Bay,

And its opposite shore, and has a soil of extreme richness So great are the natural attractions of the spot that very many of the wealthy citizens of San Francisco have already purchased whole blocks in the same tract, and design building residences thereon.

The Rev. E. Thomas, D. D.,

Is President of the Association; Lester L. Robinson formerly Vice President of the Sacramento Railroad Company, is the Treasurer, and Thomas B. Lewis, formerly of Portland, Secretary

Four lots, 25x100 feet each, constitute a share, costing $215—paid in monthly instalments of $10 each, after the first payment of $20 has been made

Maps and books giving full information of the workings of the Association can be obtained at the store of J. L. PARRISH & CO.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—The Pacific Mail Steamship Golden City, which left Panama May 30th, where she connected with the steamer leaving New York May 20th, arrived here at 1 o clock P. M. to-day.

Recent letters from Acapulco confirm the report of the capture of Queretaro It occurred May 15th

Officer Joseph Straus, of the Central Department of the Metropolitan Police of New York arrived on the steamer to-day with a requisition for the arrest of Aaron Meyer, who absconded from Williamsburg some weeks since and abducted a young girl Adriane of age named Becker Miller The complaint charged him with having stolen $1 300 from Rafael Braun, of Williamsburg on the morning of the 20th of April last. It is stated that Braun entrusted him with the money to deposit in the bank, and that Meyer immediately after ran away with the money and abducted the girl Meyers will be taken back by the next steamer He denies all the charges which have been made against him and says the prosecution is carried on for the purpose of getting back the girl. She still evinces a determination to stick to him through thick and thin, and still places the most implicit reliance in his word.

Recent telegrams quote the gold market in New York as very steady on Monday gold stood at 136½, and Sterling 110½ At 3 o'clock this afternoon gold was 136¼ Legal tenders are quiet, brokers buying at 73¼ and selling at 73¾

At a meeting of the Directors of the Bank of California held yesterday afternoon, the usual monthly dividend of 1 per cent was declared payable on and after Saturday, the 15th inst

Robert Cushing has commenced suit in the Fourth District Court against the proprietors of the Evening Bulletin to recover $20 000 damages for the publication of a paragraph on the primary election day, which the plaintiff claims to have been libellous The paragraph on which the action is based reads as follows

"Bob Cushman and two or three other congenial spirits stood at the polls challenging every voter for the evident purpose of creating delay"

The South San Francisco Railroad and Homestead Association have declared a dividend of $2 00 per share on their capital stock

Republican State Convention of California.

SACRAMENTO June 12.—All the delegates to the State Convention have arrived The San Francisco boat last night was jammed and many persons hunted for houses to find rooms There is a very large attendance of candidates and their friends The Orleans being closed, hotel accommodations are exceedingly scarce, but the Orleans parlors are opened for camp use, and bunks in one of old The various factions and delegations have been actively engaged since yesterday in comparing notes and arranging the programme of action The northern delegations seemed to be here in the most strength, at first but appointed to be well organized The Convention will not meet until 2 o'clock Meanwhile the delegations are canvassing vigorously The situation is thought to be at as full as Bidwell and Gorham are the only candidates seriously talked of for Governor Bidwell's friends claim to have a small but sure majority for preliminary organization on the basis of admitting the Sacramento Long delegation and excluding the San Francisco Longs They say they can nominate Bidwell with the Convention thus made up and claim to have gained strength since their first caucus last night The Gorham men are more reticent but are believed to rely on the strength of the San Francisco delegation if that is admitted There has been some talk among a certain class of Gorham supporters of putting forward Colonel Lee for Governor in his place if they find his nomination is at all likely to cause seri ous defection The rumor cannot be traced to any reliable source. The feeling against Gorham, with all but his pledged delegations is very strong Some of the best men seeking minor positions say they will not go on the ticket with him and many very influential outsiders who are not after office urge that his defeat is necessary to save the party Some of the San Francisco candidates insist that Bidwell must admit their anti-Gorham delegation if he would have their support, contending that they are at least entitled to the control of the city organization, which this recognition would give them On the technical ground of regularity, and having polled a majority the Sacramento delegation is thought, by strict partisans though the friends of Bidwell to have the best status It is rumored that some of Gorham's friends threaten that if their Sacramento and San Francisco delegations are refused admission their side will withdraw This is probably only meant to terrify and help the way for the San Francisco boys alone Bidwell is unquestionably the popular candidate and seems to be making a manly effort Thus far no states have been made up on either side as far as can be learned, and the candidates for minor positions are on the tenter hooks The affinities of most of them however begin to be manifest Agreements on the general ticket will begin to be reached after the first blood has been drawn in the preliminary organization

Evans, Chamberlin Jones and Minchin are candidates for Lieutenant Governor The first named seems to have an available trading delegation, and is trying to fasten himself on Bidwell Jones is considered in Gorham's fight Gorham does not want to pack any dead timber if he can help it and is not cried to be unfriendly to Evans. Minchin has been sick and unable to do much for himself.

Pacheco and Pico are the only parties talked of for Treasurer, with the chances strongly in favor of the former who is conceded to have a safe record

Quite a scene is to have a fair aspect of re nomination for Controller and Levitt for Superintendent of Public Instruction

State printing matters are much mixed with Gwen Smith McCarthy, White and Gordon leading McCarthy is said to be Gorham's man but no candidate will be nominated without making a division

Nothing definite about the judiciary The latest report from the Gorham faction is to the effect that they expect advantages in the preliminary struggle by Parks Chairman of the State Committee, calling to order, and Barstow calling the roll The delegations have been notified to report credentials before the opening of the Convention at the committee room, an unusual and suspicious proceeding

The Convention of Second Congressional District met here yesterday and adjourned until after the final adjournment of the State Convention McCollum will be the nominee if Bidwell wins All but two of the El Dorado delegation are said to be for Bidwell In the Northern District the fight is between Harrison, Parks and Goodwin, with the chances in favor of Harrison in the event of Bidwell's success Parks is accused of playing double, and being now for Gorham

The foregoing are all surface intimations of these latest developments every variety of rumor is afloat

The preliminary organization is likely to be very close, and its results will decide the fate of the leading candidates. There is no unusual excitement so far, and no talk about platform It is more difficult than most previous conventions to get a clear idea of the situation, but there is reason to hope for the best

SACRAMENTO, June 12, 12:35 P. M.—It has just transpired that the Gorham candidate for temporary chairman is W. W. Stow, of San Francisco and the Bidwell candidate is Judge McFarland, of Nevada

The San Joaquin delegation are reported to offer their full vote for Bidwell to secure the nomination of Higby, if this arrangement is effected the wires one say, Bid

THURSDAY MORNING JUNE 13, 1867.

Facts for the People of Portland.

The Democracy of this city have been attempting for the past six months to ingratiate themselves with the people, by keeping up a furious out cry against the extravagance of the party in power, and clamoring for retrenchment Ever since the present Mayor entered upon the duties of his office the citizens of Portland have been harangued almost weekly about high taxation, exorbitant pay to city officials, and corrupt and wanton squandering of the people's money. This has been the burden of messages from his Honor to the Common Council, the theme of debate on the tongues of Democratic members of the Council, and the staple talk of their street corner politicians.

How utterly false and empty all this high, sounding talk is, and what its sole object, if not already manifest to every thinking man in the city, cannot fail to become so, upon the most superficial examination of the history of the financial department of the city government for the last three or four years. A plain and unvarnished statement of the facts as they are of record in the archives of the city, is sufficient to disclose the secret of the whole matter, and unmask these Democratic "retrenchers" in their true character of the most unscrupulous demagogues

The city government passed into the hands of the Republican Union party on the 15th day of April, 1864, when Henry Failing became Mayor. Prior to that date, and from "time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," every department of the city government was managed and controlled by the Democratic party —and that party by Hallock, Holmes & Co And to this period we are triumphantly referred to by these Democratic gentlemen for the halcyon days of public economy, light taxation, and consequent prosperity and happiness, and to receive the return of these blessings we are conjured to restore that party to place and power.

Let not the citizens of Portland be deceived by this specious falsehood The first message of Mayor Failing, in April 1864, disclosed the somewhat alarming truth, that it was impossible to arrive at any satisfactory understanding of the condition of the city finances, because there was no record of the indebtedness of the city. The amount of money in the Treasury was $781 93 in legal tender notes, worth at the time fifty cents on the dollar, equivalent to $390 96½. The amount of outstanding warrants against this sum it was impossible to state. The beginning of the fiscal year was soon afterwards changed from the 15th of April to the 1st of January, and subsequent estimates had to be made accordingly; but no provision had been made for the current expenses in the interim from April 15th, 1863, to January 1st, 1865. There were therefore no taxes levied or collected for that time, and thus the only resource of the city for its current expenses during the eight and one half months from April 15th to January 1st, and to meet outstanding warrants, was $390 96½—a sum inadequate to sustain the government for one fourth of the time, under the most rigid economy. After the new Council was organized on the 15th of April, 1864, as above stated, warrants were presented, drawn prior to that time, to the amount of $13,672 08, and a judgment was obtained against the city, upon a course of action accruing prior, thereto, for $5,416 45, making the aggregate outstanding liabilities of the city, at the time Mayor Failing and the Council came into office, $19,068 53. And this large amount, together with the deficit of funds for the current expenses of the city for eight and a half months, was to be raised by subsequent taxation, in addition to the amount necessary for the current expenses after January 1st, 1865 Thus it will be seen that when the Union party came into power, there was in the Treasury $390 96½, against a debt of over nineteen thousand dollars saddled on the people by these Democratic "retrenchers," and no means of defraying current expenses for almost a whole year!

There are only a portion of the items that go to make up the sum of increasing the tax, after the year 1864. We shall give another chapter of this important history to-morrow.

Improvement of the Willamette River.

Two appropriations have been made by Congress for the improvement of the Willamette river below this city. The first appropriation set apart $15,000 for this purpose. The second appropriation amounted to $30,000, and was added on the 25th of February last. On that day the river and harbor appropriation bill was before the Senate, and Mr. Williams moved that this appropriation for the Willamette river be inserted as an amendment, making the following remarks in support of his motion:

I move this amendment after consultation with the Committee on Commerce and without any objection on their part; and it is in accordance with estimates submitted by the War Department I hope there will be no objection to it. It is a very small appropriation, and if inserted will be the only one in the bill for the Pacific coast

Mr. CHANDLER. Permit me to enquire of the Senator whether he has the recommendation of the War Department?

Mr. SHERMAN Does it come from a committee? If not, it is not order.

Mr WILLIAMS I have already stated that the committee have agreed to it.

Mr SHERMAN What committee?

Mr WILLIAMS The Committee on Commerce I have consulted the members of this committee, and they have agreed that I might offer it. I do not see any reason why this item should be left out of the bill. It is a very small appropriation, and it is found in the estimates of the War Department There is the same reason for making this appropriation that there is for making the others

Mr Nesmith made the following remarks on the subject

The report of the Engineer Bureau, which is before me shows that in the last two years the city of Portland has expended $60 000 in building a snag boat dredger, &c, and in improving the river, The city has the use of the boat, which can be loaned to the Government, and all we ask is this small appropriation to carry on the work: An immense commerce passes over this river It is the great avenue of the commerce of the State of Oregon, eastern Washington, Idaho, and a large portion of western Montana

A Senator from Vermont moved that the appropriation asked for be expended in the improvement of the Willamette river above as well as below the city of Portland, and inquired why the appropriation was wanted exclusively for the lower part of the river. Mr Williams replied

I will state for the information of the Senator from Vermont that Portland is the head of navigation of the Willamette river for ocean steamships and sailing vessels, and that above the city of Portland the river is only navigable in the summer time for boats of light draft and twelve miles above the city of Portland are the falls of the Willamette; so that this appropriation ought to be made for the improvement of the river below the city of Portland, the object being to improve the river so that ocean steamships may not be obstructed. The city of Portland is located twelve miles up the Willamette river from the Columbia, and there is a bar between the city and the Columbia river that obstructs to some extent the navigation for ocean steamships When the water is low there is difficulty in crossing the bar The city of Portland has expended $60 000 of its own money, has constructed a dredging machine and last year $15 000 was appropriated for the purpose, and this is required to complete the work

Mr EDMUNDS The explanation is satisfactory to me but it did not appear by the papers I withdraw my amendment to the amendment

The amendment of Mr Williams was agreed to

No part of either of these appropriations has been expended here, and hence it will be seen that the sum of $45,000 is ready, or should be ready for this work. It is understood that operations will begin as soon as the water recedes The money appropriated will go far toward completing the work and may suffice to finish it If a further appropriation is wanted it can be secured on the recommendation of the officer who has charge of the work When the appropriations already made are expended a report will be made to the Department, and if the improvement is not complete a proper representation of the matter will in all probability secure such further aid as may be necessary.

On Wednesday night last, 5th inst, at Corvallis the store of J G Kreichbaum was broken into and goods to a considerable amount taken away

Washington Territory.

Well The agony in Washington Territory is at last over Hitherto we have not said much about the election there, preferring to wait till the whole Territory was heard from We did not want to shout or jubilate till we were assured beyond a doubt of the result It is settled at last Flanders has over one hundred majority, and the achievement of our friends across the river is something worth boasting of Before the election the Democrats did the hurrahing It is our turn now.

The Herald has already uttered a piteous wail over Clark's defeat On Sunday morning it chanted the big "orphan's" requiem Since then it has had nothing to add Adding is not in its line just now For this interesting mathematical process the "orphan boy" has also conceived an inexpressible disgust. Subtraction and short division are the methods with which he has a better acquaintance.

We can't see that it is any advantage to an aspirant for Congressional honors to be a big, healthy "orphan boy" None in the least. People are inconsiderate, and this is a cold, heartless, uncharitable world No doubt this defeated, persecuted "orphan boy" wishes in the bitterness of his heart that he had known the world as well two months ago as he does now What disappointment would not this precious knowledge have saved him!

The "orphan boy," let it forever be remembered, is the first victim of negro suffrage on these Pacific shores Upon his unprotected head the blow has fallen. The "Abolitionists!" have never had a positive majority in Washington Territory till now, and for this state of things the "Rump Congress" is entirely responsible. For, did not that usurping body enact that negroes should vote in Washington Territory, and is not the present "Radical" majority there an unequivocal manifestation of the satisfaction of the people with that outrageous and odious enactment? This measure was made the issue in the Territory by the Democratic party. They made their whole fight against it. The "orphan boy" was their champion, and in an open encounter against negro suffrage he was badly worsted. He was put forward and sacrificed. Impartial suffrage was too much for him. He could not stand against so powerful an antagonist. He was beaten, badly beaten, in a most unequal encounter. The "Rump Congress" is wholly to blame, for had it not enacted impartial suffrage in the Territories, the Democracy of Washington would not have been provoked to run a tilt against it, and their champion, the "orphan boy," would not have been put forward to be unhorsed and overthrown, as he was in the very first onset.

It is hoped that this experience will prove a valuable lesson to the Democracy,—that it will teach them the folly of needlessly seeking for an opportunity to take issue with so powerful a principle as impartial suffrage

The Democratic papers all said that negro suffrage was the issue The day before the election the Herald declared that this was the paramount question If this was true, what has it to say of the result? Will it allow that negro suffrage has been endorsed by a majority of the people of Washington Territory?

Four years ago Washington Territory elected a Democratic delegate by 250 majority. This was the legitimate strength of the party in the Territory at that time Two years ago the Democrats let the election go by default, as the overthrow of the rebel confederacy had temporarily disheartened them. But for this circumstance they would have been successful, as they undoubtedly had a majority in the Territory at the time, equal to that of two years before. Since then they have been largely reinforced from the same rebel hive which sent its swarms into Oregon, yet in the election last week they were defeated. They had, besides, what they esteemed of incalculable advantage, viz. all the capital they could make out of the negro suffrage question. They pressed this issue everywhere They behold the result. Do they still believe there is political capital for them in the suffrage question?

This election shows how utterly it is out of the power of the Democratic party to make any further use of the popular prejudice on this subject for political effect. The old cry about "negro equality" has spent its force. It has had its day. The people are not fools, and the clap-trap harangues of narrow politicians are heard only with contempt. The Democrats made negro suffrage an issue in Washington Territory, and for the first time in its history we have carried the Territory in a direct contest between the two parties. We are satisfied. Washington Territory responds to Washington City, and each tells of a Union victory. Everything that bears the name Washington repudiates the sham Democracy.

Fechheimer, it is said, complains that his friends were not allowed to vote at the Republican meeting in the Second Ward If this was so it was because nearly all his friends who were present were Democrats But though this was the case there were only two persons offering to vote who were refused. One of these was a thorough Democrat who never voted anything but a Democratic ticket and never will, and who avowed his intention not to vote for the nominees unless Fechheimer were nominated. The other was a person who stated that he had not voted for five years Fechheimer went to the meeting to seek a pretext for the course he has now taken. He knew he could not be nominated, and wanted an excuse for coming out as an independent candidate. He has now formally gone over to the Democratic camp where he belongs

The Democracy of Washington Territory are not sharp. They have suffered themselves to be defeated for want of "supplemental returns" Why did they not avail themselves of the experience and services of the ex President of that defunct Association known in its day as the "Wisconsin Forty Thieves?" Why did they not send to Oregon for his aid in the emergency? He could have shown them a way whereby they could have obtained a majority of the votes of the Territory. They have failed because they had no "supplemental returns" Beriah could have ordered this matter better.

Before Thomas J Holmes was Mayor he refused for a long time to pay his taxes, and endeavored to force greenbacks on the city instead of paying his taxes in coin as other citizens did After long delay and protracted litigation he was compelled to pay up. It has been urged as a reason why he should be elected Mayor that his official pride would probably prevent the recurrence of such a difficulty The motive that prompted this suggestion was of course one of "economy"

The Herald, in mourning over the corruption of the times quotes the remark of an Eastern paper to the effect that the Government of New York City is "utterly corrupt" The Herald should have added in the next sentence 'New York city at the last election gave forty six thousand Democratic majority' This would have rendered the point intelligible

Last fall a prominent democrat of this city refused to vote 'When niggers are allowed to vote I am done," he said All expostulation by his fellow democrats failed to move him He was fixed firm on the centre, founded on a rock On yesterday this same democrat not only voted, but he went with his negro hired man to the polls and they voted in company Who will say the spirit of progress is not abroad?

PERRY DAVIS VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER, after a thorough trial, by innumerable living witnesses has proved itself THE MEDICINE OF THE AGE. Although there have been many medicinal preparations brought before the public since the first introduction of Perry Davis Vegetable Pain Killer, and large amounts expended in their introduction, the Pain Killer has continued to steadily advance in the estimation of the world as the best Family Medicine ever introduced It is an internal and external remedy. One positive proof of its efficacy is, that the sales have constantly increased, and wholly upon its own merits The effect of the Pain Killer upon the patient, when taken internally in case of Cold, Cough, Bowel Complaints, Cholera, Dysentery, and other affections of the system, has been truly wonderful, and has won for it a name among medical preparations that can never be forgotten Its success in removing pain, as an external remedy in case of Burns, Bruises Sore Sprains, Cuts, Sting of Insects, and other causes of suffering, has secured for it such a host of testimony, as an almost infallible remedy, that it will be handed down to posterity as one of the greatest medical discoveries of the nineteenth century

Councilmen:

First Ward—WM. DIERDORFF
Second Ward—R. B. KNAPP, W. H WATKINS.
Third Ward—M. F. MULKEY, C. D. BURCH, L. BEEMER.

A PORTLAND SCHOOL MA'AM ABROAD.—Our Astoria correspondent furnishes us the following copy of a communication from a Portland school ma'am, who is teaching on the [illegible] Plains, to the school superintendent of Clatsop county. It is genuine. All will agree that we have need of at least one smart school ma'am:

Harriet F. S——, Grand Potentate of the seven by nine architectural wonder of Clatsop Plains, devoted to the [illegible] of "truths, wills and rithmetic," to [illegible] Grand Vizer of science and philosophy, [illegible] long life, strawberries and cream, and the highest niche in the temple of fame—

This is to inform you that on Friday, June 14th, there will be an examination of the students of the above mentioned institution, and your presence is respectfully requested.

[illegible] in Latin and Greek will be omitted in consequence of habit of invisibility, which they are likely to [illegible] at any moment; and it will not be necessary to [illegible] the classes in the sciences and the higher mathematics, since their proficiency is notorious. We have, however, one class in "subtraction," and two classes in the First Reader, whose progress will delight you, and we hope to awaken your admiration by a composition on "fire," commencing—"Fire is one of the substances which is [illegible] the great name of the earth." We shall be ready to receive you at an early hour.

CLATSOP PLAINS, June 7th, 1867.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS.—The Democratic Convention which met at the Willamette Theater, yesterday afternoon, [illegible] in nomination the following candidates for city offices:

For Mayor—Thomas J. Holmes.
For Recorder—Joseph Jeffries.
For Treasurer—Benj. F. Goodwin.
For Assessor—R. H. Johnson.

Messrs. A. C. Ripley, William Beck and William Chapman were appointed a City Central Committee.

A platform was adopted declaring that, in the selection of [illegible] of the city, it is of the highest importance that good men be chosen, and inviting all who favor economy, retrenchment and reform to join in support of the ticket so selected.

We learn that a resolution to call the ticket the City Ticket was [illegible] and amended so as to christen it the Union ticket, but the convention adjourned without [illegible]

A. C. Ripley is the candidate for Councilman in the [illegible] ward. Messrs. C—— Hochheimer and Robert Porter are the [illegible] in the 2d ward.

A HOME MADE PICTURE.—Mr. W. T. Shanahan, of the Music and Art Gallery, has on exhibition a very fine picture, [illegible] in oil, by Mr. H. Bachydt, carriage painter at the shop of W. M. Cooper & Co. It is a fancy sketch, [illegible] the foreground a group of elk at play, a limpid [illegible], an open wood, and a lake running back [illegible] in the extreme back ground is a line [illegible] Cascades, which fade as naturally into the blue [illegible] as in any picture we remember ever to have seen. The piles of cumuli, dark on the left and growing brighter as the vision moves upward and towards the right, are very true to nature, and the sky beyond gleams [illegible] as the breaks as though the artist had plucked down a patch of the ethereal blue and overspread his canvas with it. The picture would be noticeable in any gallery in the world.

MINERAL DISCOVERIES ON LEWIS RIVER.—We learned [illegible] day from a St. Helens gentleman that Dr. Kinney [illegible] place and two men who reside in the valley of Lewis river, have within the last few days, made a discovery of very rich copper mines about twenty miles from the [illegible] of Lewis river. Rock exhibited at St. Helens is said to have a very large per cent of copper, and several specimens of native copper are reported to have been brought down by the discoverers, but our informant had not seen them. It is also said that gold placers have been found on the same stream, which will pay, from three to five dollars per day to the hand. It has long been known that gold in small [illegible] could be found along the banks of Lewis river.

ATTEMPTED INCENDIARISM.—Two attempts were made yesterday [illegible] to fire an unoccupied building on Third street, [illegible] and Taylor. About three o'clock the [illegible] of an adjoining house, discovered a fire in the [illegible] among some straw which had been used under [illegible] This was extinguished with a few buckets of water. A [illegible] was quiet for awhile. A few minutes before 8, however, it was discovered a fire had been used as a kitchen. An alarm was [illegible] the engines were got out, but their services were [illegible] dered, as the fire was again put out with [illegible] ter. The roof of the kitchen was burned in [illegible], but no great damage done.

NOTICE TO ASTONISH THEM.—We saw yesterday at the store of Mr. Chatfield, corner of First and Morrison [illegible] a jar of strawberries put up by Mr. C. for a gentleman who intends to send them to his friends in New York, for the purpose of showing them what Oregon can produce. They average over an inch in diameter, [illegible] Peasly, and several of them measure four and a half inches in circumference. They were taken from the garden of Mr. W. E. Cooper of this city. If they do not astonish the Yorkers, we must believe they have lost the physiological bump which gets up the sensation of [illegible]

LOOKING FOR THE NEW SCHOOL HOUSE.—Messrs. Goodenough & Clark have the contract to build the new school house on block 90, Couch's Addition. The wood work is to be furnished by A. Carson & Porter, who have ordered the lumber from the mill of J. M. Richie & Co., St. Helens. The bills foot up about one Hundred and forty thousand feet, of lumber.

THE CITY COUNCIL.—At half an hour past the usual hour of meeting of the Council, there was no quorum present. The Mayor took the chair and called to order. The only Messrs. McCraken and Zieber answered the call of the roll. The Mayor, declaring no quorum present, [illegible] the Council to the next regular evening meeting.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE STORE.—Messrs. Byron Z. Holmes and Solon S [illegible] land have opened a new boot and shoe store at No. 95, First street, the place lately occupied by A. D. Shelby, where they have a fine stock of new [illegible] in which they are offering at reduced prices. They also make to order anything wanted in their line.

WHEAT FOR PORTLAND.—Arrived per steamer Sweetzer, from Oregon City, Wednesday, June 12th: 59 bales wool, 43 [illegible] bacon, 3 cases lard, 1,410 [illegible] flour, 301 bags feed, 18 bags oats, 5 half bbls produce, 2 boxes [illegible], 1 roll leather, 507 bags wheat, 6 boxes eggs, 6 pkgs [illegible], 1 buggy and a lot of household furniture.

WHAT BECAME OF THE SNAG?—An up country newspaper, mentioning the late accident to the Active says she "ran into a snag." Strangely enough, the paper does not give the dimensions of that remarkably enormous snag, or an account of how the Active got out of it, or what became of the snag.

GOOD TEMPLARS' CONVENTION.—A letter from Lafayette was shown us last evening, in which it was stated that the Good Templars of Yamhill county met in convention on the 8th inst, and resolved to celebrate the Fourth of July. It is understood that all the Lodges of the county will participate.

THE STEAMER ACTIVE.—This steamer, which was sunk the other day near Peoria, was not much damaged and is now performing her regular work. President McOnilly informs us that Capt. Cochran, and not Capt. Pease, is entitled to the credit of raising her.

THE M. E. CHURCH.—Workmen were engaged yesterday in clearing the fruit trees from the northwest corner of the M. E. Church block, to make way for the new edifice. Persons were also engaged in preparations to raise and move the [illegible]

MASON'S COURT.—The case of the City vs Bleman, [illegible] ing filth within the city limits, was tried Tuesday and decision reserved till yesterday morning, when the [illegible] was [illegible] for a new trial. The motion will be heard this morning.

WEST END.—There will be a regular meeting of Oregon Lodge No. 55, I. O. O. F. this evening at 8 o'clock, for the transaction of important business. A full attendance is requested by the President.

MONEY UNCALLED FOR.—There is a message in the telegraph office for Capt. D. H. Smith.

TRUE SHOULD NEVER BE SACRIFICED.—Borman Bros. are guilty of underselling for cash any house in the city of Portland in their line, on corner of Front and Morrison street.

MRS. WARREN G. MORRIS, of Jersey City, deposed:

Q.—From your experience of Family Sewing Machines and the work they do, which do you prefer; how strong is your preference, and state your reasons for it?

A.—Grover & Baker's, most decidedly. I think the work is more durable, more even, and looks better than that of any other machines, and the machine is more easily [illegible] and kept in order than that of any other; and you can do a greater variety of work with one-sixth more trouble than in any other machine. Wm Currier & Co., Agents, 103 Front street, Portland.

AN OLD NURSE FOR CHILDREN.—Don't fail to procure MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething. No mother, who has ever tried it, will consent to let her child pass through this critical period without the aid of this invaluable preparation. Gives rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child. Cures wind colic, and regulates the bowels. 25 cents a bottle. Hostetter, Smith & Dyer, Agents for the Pacific Coast.

COLDS AND COUGHS.—Sudden changes of climate are of Pulmonary and Bronchial affections. Experience has proved that simple remedies act speedily when taken in the early stage of the disease, take at once "Brown's Bronchial Troches," let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be warded off.

THE MARKET, foot of Stark street, opposite the Ferry, receives daily large supplies of fresh salmon, which are sold at the lowest rates. Please call and examine.

Extracting teeth by Dr. Richardson's apparatus, with Ether or Chloroform Spray, is local in its application, the tooth and surrounding parts only becoming insensible to pain. Those suffering from bad teeth can now have them removed free from pain and without the effects of inhaling chloroform, ether or nitrous oxide (laughing gas).
N. B.—To strangers I would say, that a remarkably successful Dental Practice for the last 5 years in this city, will be a sufficient guarantee for them to receive a First-Class and Finished Piece of Work. Numerous testimonials to the same can be given at the Office.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU gives health and vigor to the frame and bloom to the pallid cheek. Debility is accompanied by many alarming symptoms, and if no treatment is submitted to, consumption, insanity, or epileptic fits ensue.

Consumption like the Rattle Snake, always gives warning of its approach. A hacking cough, dull pain in the chest, difficulty of breathing, are the indications that there is more or less irritation of the lungs. If this be neglected, and go on until pustules are formed, followed by tubercles, which sometimes eat off the blood vessels, death will be the result. Allen's Lung Balsam, will heal the irritated parts, allay the inflammation, removing the phlegm and matter, thus stopping the cough, and preventing fatal consumption. For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

I.

When the notable Duchess Anne passed away from this world, the independence of Brittany was no longer a seperate province, ruled over by a monarch of its own. When Anna married the French king, or rather the second of her royal husbands, Brittany became part of the heritage of the French crown. For, despite the conditions which the proud lady made in favor and for the benefit of her beloved land, in the hope that it might remain for ever an independent state, the marriage of her daughter Claude with the Duke of Angouleme, afterwards Francis the first, sealed irrevocably the fate of Brittany.

Time stole on, but though Brittany had now became part of France, the Britons were not French in feeling and aspiration; they did not march onward, were not progressive; they preferred an "ancien regime," an old fashioned state of affairs, and went plodding on, with their feudal seigneurs living like minor patriarchs among them. There was not much money, much energy, much talent to boast of; but they were a simple, honest folk, who went on their way peacefully, and at the conclusion of their uneventful lives descended to the grave well satisfied with the manner in which they had performed their various duties.

And yet there are Breton names that will live as long as history is history, heroes and men of letters, from Du Guesclin to Georges Cadoudal, from the monk Abelard to the renowned Le Sage and Descartes.

Throughout the north-west and western provinces of France, the primitive state of life existed to a great extent, and simplicity extended even to the priests, who were, we are told by a French historian, "ignorant but pious and irreproachable," a half and-half commendation; but the blind led the blind in the right direction, and it needs not a learned man to enter the kingdom of heaven.

Throughout these provinces a very old-fashioned attribute—namely, loyalty, reigned supreme, and was as much in vogue with the "bons Bretons" and the "Vendeens" as in the days when it ranked as one of the cardinal virtues.

One scarcely knows whether loyalty in the present age is more than a sentiment, or whether loyalty exists at all in its full and original signification. Days have gone by wherein a man would cheerfully lay down his life at his sovereign's bidding, deeming by such act he was all but working out his own salvation. True, armies go out to fight the sovereign's battles, and there are soldiers found willing to be shot at and take the risk; but whether the trifling sum per diem is not a stronger argument with them than any virtuous and abstract idea of loyalty, is perhaps less than doubtful.

Loyalty was loyalty in the olden time—such as it never can be now; for those were the days of chivalrous feeling and knight errantry, and venturous youths grew into courtiers, and gained the hearts of kings and queens romantically, in a manner quite impracticable in this unromantic age. A poet's verses or a velvet mantle, work not the results which they wrought in those days of poetry and romance. But those half-misty days might well linger long among the Bretons, for has Merlin not found a grave in their midst, and is not Arthur sleeping in Avalon? Perchance he lulled them into a half enchanted sleep, like to that of the king and queen and all the court in the legend of the Sleeping Beauty.

And as they slept, a hedge grew up around them, and they were as dead to the outer world; and they woke not up until a prince should come and kiss the princess who reigned in the hearts of these "bons Bretons." And the name of the princess was Loyalty.

The prince who touched her lips was a Bourbon, he was the heir to the throne, the legitimate monarch, so the Bourbon argued, and therefore their allegience were due to him. No matter that the Bourbons had faults, imbecilities, shortcomings of all kinds, the Bretons were blind to them, for loyalty, like love, can overlook many failings.

Far away from the stir of the great world, in villages where the lives of fathers and sons for many generations were but as the same story told over and over again, they with their simple and ignorant but irreproachable priest, wishes for no change—they comprehended not the need of a revolution for which they certainly felt no individual necessity.

The Bretons were content; and content in itself, and in a certain sense, is a blessed possession; but in another sense it has a degenerating tendency, for, as a modern writer truly observes, when a man sits down perfectly satisfied with himself and his surrounding, he has "reached his culminating point," he will go no higher, and the probability is that he will henceforward go downward. For the world is a gigantic sea saw that is ever in motion, and if one is not going up, up, up, one must be going down. True, it may be said that at this rate each will have his turn; but some by dexterity, savoir, time chance or opportunity, seem to be ever at the rising end of the plank.

The Bretons, however, were content with things as they were; they were content with the Bourbons, they were content with the present system. Was not the dethroning of a monarch a sacrelege? The Bretons shuddered in their quiet villages. Was not? But my, preparation has lasted longer than I intended, and with this skeleton of the state of Breton feeling in the year 1793 or thereabouts, I begin my story.

II

"And thou wouldst go to Vannes, my son, and become a great man. What has put that thought into thy head?" asked Madame Chabot.

"No great man, mother," answered the youth, "but a priest, to help forward our holy religion, e[illegible] the wicked decrees of those who [illegible] and deluge the unhappy land. I will lift up my voice against [illegible] bear witness that there are [illegible] not bow down to any but the [illegible] And Rene's eye kindled, [illegible] animation lighted up his pale, intellectual countenance.

"Ah, my son," returned Madame Chabot, "rest quiet in thine own home; surely there need be no more martyrs to swell the ranks. Thou hast caught the fever that is raging in Brittany, and dost believe that Georges Cadoudal is destined to be the deliverer of his country."

"He is a brave man; see how he fought at Granville," said Rene.

"And remember how he did but just escape from the prison at Brest," interrupted the mother.

"Rene, if needs be I will not urge thee against lifting thine arm in defence of thy country when the time comes; but stay in thy home now. Remember that thou art my only child; thou art not wanted as I want thee. Wait, Rene, wait."

"So did Madame Cathelineau argue with her husband," answered Rene; "and what came of it?"

"Nay, if he had but listened it might have been well for him," replied Madame Chabot.

"And his work have been left undone. No, mother this is not the time for men to be hiding away in safety. No man's life is his own in these days."

"Thou art scarce a man yet," responded Madame Chabot, sadly, as she gazed upon the slender figure of the youth before her.

"Thou hast seen and spoken with Cadoudal!" exclaimed Madame Chabot. "Then my words go for nothing, for they say that Georges can persuade men to follow him as the bird lures its young from the nest. He, has made made many a Breton home desolate, and many a wife a widow. When I hear the wild cry, Chouf—chouf resounding through the midnight air, I close my ears and shudder."

"That is not spoken like a Breton," answered Rene; "when our good priests dare not perform their holy rites on land, but steal away in frail boats far out on the open sea, and there, with the dark night heavens for a roof and the waves for an unstable resting-place, speak comfort to their congregated flock, is it a time for any to hold back? I will go to Vannes. Georges himself said, 'thou art too tender for our rough work, my lad; go and pray for us, for we need the prayers of true hearts.' I have made up my mind; I will go to the college at Vannes, and become a kloarek."

"And then a priest!" ejaculated Madame Chabot, interrogatively.

"And then a priest," repeated Rene, calmly.

"And Ninon!"

A shadow passed over the face of the youth.

"Ninon is young. I have never told her that I loved her."

"Rene, dost think that she knows it not already?"

"These are no times to think of marrying or giving in marriage," replied the young man, evasively; but despite the cold words, Madam Chabot know that a struggle was going on in his breast.

"Poor Ninon!" said she.

"Mother!" answered Rene, almost sternly, "tempt me not. My duty lies before me. It is for you to strengthen me, and not to wring my heart."

Poor Madame Chabot! She saw not with the eyes of the young enthusiast. She had looked forward to the marriage of her son with the good little Ninon as the joy and solace of her declining years. And to have the pleasant picture painted out was too much for her.

She was, it is true, a staunch royalist; and if M. le Comte d'Artois had suddenly appeared on the scene, she would have gone down on her knees in a paroxysm of loyalty and yielded up the last title of her possessions to aid his cause.

But M. le Comte was in England and doubtless the great English nation was looking after his interests; so wherefore was she, a lone Breton widow, to be deprived of her only son on his account?

She knew her duty to her sovereign, and would not be behindhand in performing it "when the time came;" for Madam Chabot held that there was a fitting time for all things, and that the best the Breton peasants could do at the present crisis was to remain quiet until the revolutionary storm had passed away, and the clouds should discover the sun shining on the legitimate monarch, when she and all other good Bretons would step forward and tender their loyalty.

For Madame Chabot's loyalty was not effusive, it was of the sentimental character—quite unlike that which burned in the heart of the enthusiastic Rene.

III

"Poor Ninon!"

The words rang in Rene's ears as he turned from his mother's cottage, and they seemed to draw him unconsciously to the spot where he should find the girl. Ninon was drawing water at the well, and looking into its depths to see the bucket come up.

She was startled as Rene approached.

"What is the matter, Rene?" she asked, as she caught sight of the grave face looking down upon her.

But Rene made no reply, for somehow it occurred to him all at once that it would be much more difficult to confide his projects to Ninon than it had been to his mother.

Ninon unfastened her bucket from the chain and placed it on the ground beside her. At another time, Rene would have done this for her, but to-day he seemed absorbed, and she looked at him again.

"Vannes is a fine place," said Rene.

"Yes," answered Ninon, wondering what should make Rene think of Vannes at that particular moment.

"And the cathedral, Ninon, and the solemn music. One almost envied the good priests their calling."

Ninon made no reply, but she felt a sudden pain shoot through her heart, though why Rene's words should have caused it she could not imagine. However she turned quite white, as that when Rene looked at her, he said, as she had said to him:

"What is the matter, Ninon?"

"Nothing," said Ninon; but no sooner had she said it than she knew she had spoken untruly. Then she was silent, because she could not answer Rene's question.

"I am going to Vannes, Ninon," continued Rene, after a pause.

"Thou art going to Vannes?" gasped Ninon, trembling so that so she held on by the handle of the windlass to steady herself, "Wherefore art thou going, Rene?"

"I am going to be a priest, Ninon," answered Rene in a low tone.

"A priest, Rene—a priest!" murmured Ninon, as if she did not quite understand what he was saying. And everything was going round before her, and she almost felt that she should fall to the ground. It had come upon her so suddenly, and it came just at the moment that she seemed to know for the first time how much she cared for Rene.

And she had thought that Rene cared for her; but of course that was impossible, or he would not think of becoming a priest. She stood quite still, looking down upon the ground; she was afraid that Rene would find out the truth if she looked up, for the tears were coming into her eyes.

"Wilt thou not wish me well, Ninon?"

Then Ninon with a great effort spoke. Her voice was very faint, but Rene heard the words.

"I will pray for thee night and morning, Rene."

And so Rene went to Vannes, and was enrolled among the "klouzkia" of the college.

And Ninon grew pale and quiet, and one would scarcely have believed her to be the same Ninon that but a few months ago was so gay. She looked older, too, and graver; and little Margot, with a great gear in one hand, waiting for her basin to be filled from Ninon's pitcher said:

"Ninon, why art thou so sad? I have not heard the laugh for so long."

But Ninon only kissed the child, and bid her go and play.

Ninon could not see into Rene's heart, or it might have consoled her to know that there had been a struggle between love and duty in the breast of the young klouzek.

IV.

Rene pursued his studies at Vannes, and the war of the "Chouannerie" went on. Cadoudal had made common cause with La Vendee, and rumors were afloat that a great enterprise was in hand, which, if it proved successful, might restore a Bourbon on the throne of France.

Whether a Bourbon was a fitting person to fill it, entered not into the calculation of the "bons Bretons." Their horror of the Revolution and their old-fashioned virtue of loyalty amply sufficed to enlist their sympathies in behalf of the loyalist cause.

And Rene listened, eagerly, to the news that penetrated within the college walls; how that Cadoudal was ranging the country, inspiring the peasants with zeal, and enlisting all who would join him; how that the cry through Brittany was "Vive le Roi!" for the ancient spirit of loyalty was waking up, and men were within their reach, and joining the Chouan chief. For Georges was a man whom men were bound to revere, a man of calm, unwavering resolution, of dauntless energy, of cool, collected courage, a man to be trusted in times of emergency.

And so, in their rough goat skins, or picturesque costumed they came, a motley company, yet with stout hearts, determinded to defy the "Blues" of the republican army.

Unfortunately the royalist party was somewhat divided among its leaders. Stofflet and Cormantine were the leading spirits of the Paris faction, whilst Charette and du Puisaye held divers opinions on the opposite side of the Channel.

And the rumor of the enterprise came nearer and nearer; and soon upon the ocean glided forth a stately fleet. The emigres were on their homeward way to battle, and they hoped, to victory. To victory, for had not a favorable omen greeted them already? Had they not put to flight the ships of the enemy, and now they were in sight of Quiberon?

Southward they should have steered their course, but they turned aside, and made for the shores of Brittany.

Meantime, the inland provinces were in agitation. Men, rudely armed, rose up on every side, from the smuggler on the sea coast to the peasant at the plough, the red-sashed Vendeen, the Breton chevalier; and onward to sustain the disembarkment of the troops marched Georges Cadoudal with his trusty Chouans.

And Rene, in the quiet college, heard the echo of the war cry, and his pale face lighted up. He, too, would fight for his country.

"Up, comerades! our country calls; let us enrol ourselves under the banner of Georges Cadoudal!"

There was a dead silence when Rene's voice had died away, and the klouzeks gazed in astonishment on the pale, slender student, whose eyes still sparkled with unwonted fire.

And then a thrilling cry ran through the hall—

"Vive le Roi! Vive Georges Cadoudal!"

A spirit of enthusiasm reigned throughout the college. And as the call to arms went on, the klouzeks of Vannes enlisted under the standard of Georges Cadoudal.

V.

What need to recount the disasters of Quiberon; the indecision of the chiefs of the loyalist party; the skill and activity of the republican general? What need to tell how the elements warred against the unfortunate emigres, and beat their vessels back when they would fain have fled to them for shelter? What need to tell of the horrors of the after massacre? These are all matters of history.

There in a wounded soldier lying under the walls of Fort Penthievre, so still, so motionless. Hundreds are dead around him, and he is dying.

Feebly he lifts his head, there is a sabre cut across his brow, and blood oozes from a wound in his side.

He has not long to live, and amidst the awfulness of the scene, and the anguish that is upon him, old memories came crowding into his brain, and he sees a lone Breton widow weeping for her only son. And then another memory that has been with him and never left him, starts up before him, so real it seems to him the mutters faintly

"Ninon!"

What matter for earthly vows now that the earth is passing away; the poor klouzek is too feeble to battle against the old love that once filled, that has ever filled, his heart.

"Ninon!"

"Rene?"

How came she there? How had she followed on the footsteps of the Chouan army? How had she braved and been preserved from all the dangers of the wild warfare? Rene knew not, thought not, wondered not. Her arms were around him, supporting his drooping head, and he eagerly drank of the draught she held to his parched lips. It seemed quite natural that Ninon should be with him, by his side.

"Rene, my Rene! you will not die."

"My Ninon!" gasped the dying soldier, "my own Ninon!"

They were the last words of the Klouzek of Vannes.

* * * * * * *

In the convent chapel of La Chartreuse a nun might be seen, at early morning and at the vesper hour, praying beside a small stone tablet, on which these words were inscribed:

"Quiberon, 1795.

"Pray for the soul of Rene Chabot."

Poor Little Warren.—A little man in the west of Maryland rushed to the Potomac river, last Summer, swearing that he would drown himself. When he had waded in to the depth of his waist, his wife, who had followed, seized him by the hair, as a spectator describes it, she led him by the hair until she had reached a place where the water was about two feet deep, when she pulled him over backward, souzing his head under and then pulling it up again. "Drown yourself (down he went) leaving me to keep the children (another plunge.) Get drunk (another souse) and start for the river. (another dip.) Better use water instead of rum (another dip and shake of his head). I'll learn you to leave me a widow." After souzing him to her heart's content, she led him out a wetter if not a wiser man.
